Arcturus Put to Work 21 Guns, and Mr. and Mrs. Levy How Japan's Planes Work Splitting the Atom By Arthur Brisbane

Next Saturday Chicago opens the great 1933 world exposition, celebrating 100 years of scientific progress.

Postmaster-General Farley, representing the President, will officiate and lead the parade. And, most interesting to the masses, will be the Arcturus ceremony.

Looking up at a clear night, you see Arcturus, shining over your head brilliantly, and Arcturus will start all the lighting of the world's fair with a beam of light that left the giant sun 40 years ago, in 1893, year of the last Chicago World's Fair.

The feeble ray of light from the distant star will be captured, magnified by the photo-electric cell, and made to throw switches lighting the exposition.

Ask your high school boy or girl how far that ray of light has come in 40 years and you will know how far Arcturus is from Chicago. First, calculate the number of seconds in 40 years, not forgetting leap years, multiply the result by 360,000, and you will know how far the ray of that cosmic candle has traveled to help Chicago celebrate.

If Chicago had waited for the light to come from some outside nebula, the exposition would have been postponed more than a million years. What a city Chicago would have been then!

President Roosevelt, inspecting the navy yard for the first time since his election, received a salute of 21 guns. That must have amused him. He is not the man to be pleased by first-cruders. You can imagine some old ruler, craving the noise of tom-toms, drums, brass or cannon, but President Roosevelt will probably discourage the 21-gun and other salutes that burn up powder and waste public money.

Not a great deal of money, you may say, not enough to make much difference to Uncle Sam. But it would be enough to make a difference to Mrs. Thomas Levy, aged 50 and 52, after they had spent a week in New York's slum hotels, in the parks, with no place to sleep. Public relief had been shut down. The man's $12 a month as a veteran had been stopped. The 21-gun salute, in a country that can't afford to pay the veteran his $12, would have been a chance to have some food and to clean up. We have not had our clothing off since last Saturday.

Any gentleman in our army or navy who thinks you can meet airplane attack successfully with anti-aircraft guns should read the news from China.

Seven Japanese airplanes flew over Tientsin on Saturday. Three other Japanese planes were over Shanghai. Over Lualaba, north of Tientsin, Chinese anti-aircraft guns opened persistently, but did no damage to the planes—no more damage than they could. Anti-aircraft guns could do foreign planes over our cities.

Tientsin's governor, Yu Hsueh-Chung, who knows what airplanes mean, said: "I won't make Tientsin a smoking shambles like Shanghai last year. If the Japanese want to take the city, they may do so."

Not very heroic, you may say, but there is common sense in it. Our cities, if war and airplanes came, would have to say very much the same thing, if caught without adequate airplane protection, or they would be made a shambles, and a graveyard. Shit with victims of it.

Prof. Lawrence of California University reveals the fact that atoms composing eight different elements have been shown to have their electrons separated from the nuclei to which they cling with the "triumph" of the atom. Dr. Millikan, California's "cosmic ray" expert, calls the smashing of eight different atoms "altogether extraordinary." And Dr. Niels Bohr of Copenhagen, who won the Nobel prize for knowing no more about atoms, calls it "a marvelous advancement."

The question is, HOW TO harness and use the power of the atom. We know that the power of the atom is great, and light to use 93,000,000 miles through space is the power of disintegrating atoms. But shall we ever know how to use that power? Having separated the atom, its electrons and nuclei, will science be able to combine them according to its desire, producing gold, platinum and anything else wanted? It may be done. WHAT CAN WE ENHANCE? THEY CAN ENHANCE.

How would you like to remain on duty from 7 a. m. until 5 p. m. five days a week, and, from 7 until noon on Saturday and find 65 cents in your pay envelope?

Virginia Morris, a pretty brunette of 19, who lives at 124 Charles st., Cambridge, claimed today that was all the wages she received from the A. H. Hyde & Sons Co., shoe manufacturers in East Cambridge, after putting in 55 hours.

Paid Nickel a Drink For Ice Water

Virginia's story was one of the most gripping in a crop of new sweatshop charges made against the Cambridge shoe plant by girl and women employees.

Another outstanding charge was the claim by girl operatives

Expert Scoffs at Gulf Stream Yarn

"You see, dear, Sharlie"

Capt. George H. Grant, who just came through the Gulf Stream on the United Fruit steamer, says the yarn is 120 miles from New England than usual.

"That probably means a hot summer," he said.

George A. Loveland, the Boston "weather man," scoffs at the idea and says they say it. He would be flowing right over Boston by now.

"If the Gulf Stream moved every time they say it does, it would be flowing right over Boston by now," he is rumored. Capt. Grant, in the words of the famous poet, "was there, George."

$2,124,000 Is Paid by Shut Bank

The closed Federal National Bank began today to pay a second 10 per cent dividend amounting to $2,124,000 to nearly 30,000 depositors.

Permitted to make this payment was received from Washington today by Herbert Pearson, receiver.

In order to avoid confusion, dividends will be paid to 2000 depositors a day. Depositors will be notified by postcard that the dividend is available.

The first dividend, paid last November, amounted to about $2,000,000.

Depositors indebted to the bank will receive no dividend.

The second dividend was preceded by several weeks ago by the Federal National Bank, which the face of official denials that the action was contemplated.

Person hopes that at least 50 per cent will have been paid when the affair of the bank are finally straightened out. The Federal National closed in December, 1931.

The closing of the Federal National, with $30,000,000 of depositors' funds, caused the collapse of seven affiliates within a few days, involving many thousands of depositors.

Involved in the crash were the Boston Trust Co., Cambridge; Bancroft Trust Co., Worcester; Salem Trust Co.; Lawrence Trust; Brockton Trust; Middlesex National of Lowell, and the State National Bank of Lowell.

A number of suits have been filed on behalf of affiliates by Bank Commr. Guy against the Federal National and its officers.

Other suits, brought by affiliates, involve several millions more.

$50,000 FIRE IN EXETER, N. H.

Exeter, N. H., May 22 (AP)—The West End business block, a three-story wooden structure housing a postal substation, three stores and five apartments, was razed by fire today with an estimated loss of $50,000.

Two persons living in apartments on the upper floors fled, losing all their belongings.

Firemen said the blaze probably was caused by spontaneous combustion in the basement. Absence of wind prevented the fire from spreading to other structures near by.

Somerville Man Is Caught in Poolroom

George Lovell, 40, of Somerville, was held for the grand jury in Somerville court today, following a complaint filed by the city attorney. He was left in the billiard room of William Patrick, located over a postoffice in Albion st., Somerville.

Lovell pleaded guilty to breaking into the poolroom, a gambling den, and was held in $5000.

Expect Higher Court to Reverse Decision; House Fight to Die

Judge James A. Lowell will be ordered back to Virginia, where he stood trial for the alleged murder of Mrs. Agnes B. Hillyer, prominent spokeswoman, and Mrs. Nina Buckner, her companion.

The impeachment charges against Judge Lowell in the National Congress will be dropped.

There were the reports which spread definitely through legal and political circles here today as the United States Court of Appeals prepared to announce its decision in the case of the federal judge.

Crawford was indicted for the murder of the spokeswoman and her employee and companion in London, Court, Va.

GRANTED EXTRADITION

The State of Massachusetts granted the extradition on the request of the State of Virginia.

Crawford's counsel, former Attorney General J. Wm. Allen, went into Judge Lowell's court and asked for a writ of habeas corpus to prevent extradition.

Judge Lowell declined to allow Crawford to be sent back to the United States. In the course of the hearing he ventured the opinion that the trial of Crawford would be worthless in Virginia. He said that Negroes are not allowed to serve on the jury there, that the case of Crawford, in the event of conviction, would be appealed, and that it would ultimately be set aside by the United States Supreme Court.

WARNER FIGHTS RULING

Judge Lowell's observations that there was some legal justification for the grand jury in Somerville court today, following a petition for his impeachment to be referred in the National House of Representatives.

Attorney-General Warner is expected, in the name of Massachusetts, to attack before the Circuit Court of Appeals the legality of Judge Lowell's decision, and Attorney Allen to defend him.

The suggestion has been made that the Court of Appeals will find that there was some legal justification for the grand jury in Somerville court today, following a petition for his impeachment to be referred in the National House of Representatives.

Woman Beaten in Auto, Tossed Out

Mrs. Sophia Babolniska, 40, of Albert st., Brockton, was found in a dazed condition today in Quincy, where eyes blackened and nose broken.

Two men, one of whom had tried to get her to sign over her property to him, were charged with the assault. She was taken to a hospital, where, after a few drinks, they forced her to sign a paper. When she wouldn't, she was taken in a car, beaten and tossed out. Police took her home.

REPLY TO JUDGE LOWELL'S SAYS DAVIS

Address of Ambassador Davis on Page 5

Geneva, May 22 (AP)—The United States, through Norman H. Davis, told the nations of the world today that the United States would not be identified with the aggression which it will refrain from any action of a nature to hinder the collective efforts to restore peace.

This doctrine, contained by League of Nations circles as an abandonment of America's traditional policy of isolation was announced by Mr. Davis to the disarmament conference in Geneva today.

The doctrine was taken to mean that where the nation takes prompt measures against an aggressor it will not be held responsible for the aggression.

ADVOCATES ARMS CONTROL

Davis also announced that the United States advocates a system of control and supervision of armaments and said that American readiness to participate in measures for this control would be effective, automatic and permanent.

Interpreting, opposing a break revision of treaties the American ambassador-at-large urged the maintenance of the territorial status quo.

He revealed that his country defines an aggressor as one whose armed forces are found upon foreign territory in violation of treaties.

He also announced that the United States is opposed to the rearmament of any nation and declared in favor of the abolition of offensive arms.

ACCEPTS MACDONALD PLAN

He reiterated American acceptance of Premier Ramsay MacDonald's recent disarmament proposals. Turning to the Versailles treaty and its consequences, Davis expressed the conviction that there is a contractual obligation for armed nations to reduce their armaments to a defensive level which would be comparable to the level to which the vanquished powers were obliged to reduce their armaments by the peace treaties.

He referred to President Roosevelt's proposal for an international agreement to prevent the sending of arms to belligerent nations and territory and then gave his definition of an aggressor nation as in line with that proposal.

LIFE TERM IN BAKER DEATH

DEPUTY SHERIFF DOWNS

Admits 2d Degree and Faces Life; Daley to Go to Trial

John A. Bowen, Quincy youth, charged with the murder of Harry ("Pop") Riddell, Atlantic baker, during an attempted robbery last Halloween, will plead guilty to second degree murder and be sentenced to life imprisonment, Assistant District Attorney John V. Sullivan of Norfolk County announced today.

The announcement was made after a conference with Bowen's counsel, Jeremiah J. McNamara, which Bowen and John T. Daley, 20, of Neponset, waited in the detention pen of Dedham courthouse for the start of their trial for the murder of Riddell.

They sat together at hour, neither speaking to the other. Finally Bowen was returned to jail and Daley was placed on trial alone.

It was believed the government would attempt to use Bowen as star witness in an attempt to send his friend and companion on the murder night to the electric chair.

FIGHT, NOT MURDER

Leo P. Doherty, counsel for Daley, said Daley would not plead to get a court order for his client to be tried alone, but it was denied.

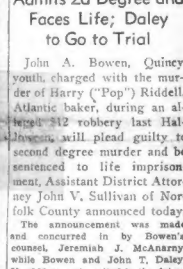

The jury was chosen in 65 minutes, with Shedd Anderson, 35, line foreman, and John A. Bowen, 21, as jurors.

Doherty previously had attempted to get a court order for his client to be tried alone, but it was denied.

STRIKE CLASHES FEARED IN AMOSKEAG WALKOUT

While the operative demanded that the mills restore wage cuts of from 22 to 45 per cent made last February, it was believed that a strike would have been averted if the company had granted a promised wage increase of 15 per cent immediately.

A meeting of all the strikers will take place tomorrow in Quincy Hall, where strikers are gathered today. Several sub-committees have been organized in different sections of the city to enable union officials to keep in immediate touch with the strikers.

Police Chief Michael Healy took personal command of the police, reinforced by all the reserves, but no trouble was looked for unless

5-15 P. C. Pay Raise in Fitchburg Plant

Fitchburg, May 22 (AP)—Wage increases ranging from 5 to 15 per cent of the money stolen was found by the police in Bowen's belongings.

Both Bowen and Daley had police records and were on parole.

Handkerchief Found

Riddell was found slain in his backroom late on the night of Oct. 21. He had been choked and beaten with a fence picket. The only tangible clue to the crime consisted of a "mask" made of two handkerchiefs tied together and left behind by the slayer. One was an ordinary cheap white handkerchief. The other was made of expensive Irish linen and bore the monogram "A. B."

Alvin B. Munroe of Fayette st., Worcester, was identified by a handkerchief as one of his he had given Bowen, in whom he had taken an interest. Bowen was trailed to Plotkin, N. S., and there arrested on Dec. 14 by the Royal Canadian Mounted police. He fought extradition.

Daley already was under arrest as a suspicious character. About $5 of the money stolen was found buried by police in Bowen's belongings.

Both Bowen and Daley had police records and were on parole.

U. S. EAGER TO REMOVE PERIL OF WAR, DAVIS TELLS GENEVA

Washington, May 22 (AP)—The text of the speech delivered today before the Geneva Disarmament Conference by Norman H. Davis, chief delegate of the United States, follows:

The initiative taken by the President of the United States in communicating directly to the heads of the states participating in the economic disarmament conference was prompted by the pressing need for concerted and decisive action to solve the international problems with which these two conferences must deal.

The disarmament conference has reached the moment for decisive decisions. We must, face the issue; we must now determine whether the nations of the world propose to go forward with progressive disarmament or revert to the pre-war system of unrestrained competition in armaments with all the continuance of the international anarchy and fear which this will involve.

At the end of the World War the peoples of all states and their leaders resolved that the national armament policy of the preceding decades must be changed.

AGAINST ARMS RACE
They were convinced that this policy had been one of the contributing factors which brought about the war. Hence a new policy regarding armaments was imposed as a fundamental part of the peace settlement.

This policy, adopted to prevent a future race in armaments, was based on the principle that armaments are a matter of general concern and that the time had passed when each state should be the sole judge of its armaments.

To carry out this conception provision was made for the disarmament of the defeated powers and at the same time a decision was taken unprecedented in history whereby the victorious states voluntarily assumed an obligation to reduce their own armaments.

As a first step the peace treaties limited the armaments of Germany and her allies with a view to rendering impossible an aggression on their part. In fact, the theory behind these treaties was that the military forces of the disarmed powers should be fixed on the basis of the maintenance of internal order and the necessary policing of frontiers, but no more.

NO ALL-TIME PLAN
The whole purpose of these provisions was to guarantee that the armies of Germany and her former allies should thereafter stay at home.

It would neither have been just nor wise, nor was it intended, that the Central Powers should be subject for all time to a special treatment in armaments. There is and has been a corresponding duty on the part of the other powers, parties to peace treaties, that by successive stages they too would bring their armaments down to a level strictly determined by the needs of self-defense.

What the United States is not bound by the provisions or the implications of those treaties, I have no hesitancy in saying that it is the will of our people, interpreted by President Roosevelt, to join with the other powers in disarming down to that level, and we are prepared to exert our influence in bringing this about, not by theoretical

We can not shirk the duty which this choice imposes upon us. We can not safely delay taking effective steps to reduce armaments to a purely defensive basis.

As far as the position of the United States is concerned, we are frank to recognize that we have a simpler problem to meet than have many of the European powers. Fears and apprehensions based on historical and racial grounds have led to the maintenance of large armaments in Europe. These large armaments have caused resentment, particularly in the less armed countries. The resulting political tension has in turn resulted in the general level of armaments.

We are not unaware of the difficulties which lie in the way of reduction of armaments here.

JORDAN MARSH COMPANY

statements of good intentions, but by decisive and progressive reduction of armaments through international agreement.

The present situation admits of no further delay. The states of the world must either go forward in good faith to carry out in all its implications the disarmament policy which they adopted in 1919 or we must recognize frankly that this policy has been abandoned and reconcile ourselves to reverting to a race in competitive armaments.

ALTERNATIVE IS WAR
If the latter course is taken the consequences are inevitable. Sooner or later there will be the breakdown of the peace machinery which has been so laboriously built up since 1918 and the world will be swept into another war.

The immediate result of a failure here would be a setback to economic recovery, which depends upon such confidence between nations as will permit a real collaboration in the task of reorganizing international trade and the free movement of goods.

This is impossible in a situation clouded by the fear of war. National budgets which should be devoted to productive and social ends are burdened with excessive and wasteful military expenditures. This leads in turn to an almost unbearable load of taxation on all our peoples.

U. S. PROBLEM EASY
If we thus candidly face the situation there is really no alternative for a sane world to consider. It is inconceivable that the responsible leaders of any country in the world could hesitate over this issue.

- Important features of all four models—
1. The cabinet is of steel with a desirable, aluminized, white chip-buffed lacquer finish. Note the butter top and the high legs that permit broom-room under base.
 2. The side, top, bottom and air-right door are protected by heavy thicknesses of the best insulating known, assuring balanced refrigeration with least current consumption.
 3. The one-piece interior has a triple-paned and venting porcelain finish which will not absorb moisture or food odors. Interior corners are all rounded.
 4. A finger-touch adjustment of the control temperature control provides varied degrees of cold.
 5. The motor starts, runs and stops with unobscurable quietness. Does not interfere with radio reception. Refrigerator may be plugged in anywhere. No special installation necessary.
 6. Fully guaranteed by Jordan Marsh Company and Stewart-Warner Corporation.

Jack Holt Adds to His Screen Laurels in 'The Woman I Stole'; Lavish Revue on Stage

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

Jack Holt is in again, in another of his man roles, this time as an overlord of the oil fields, plus usual flare for fluttering feminine hearts. The picture is "The Woman I Stole," which one may style a variation of Joseph Hergesheimer's "Tampon" variation, because of the changes made. The photograph is featured on the RKO Keith screen currently; on stage is a most excellent bill of vaudeville, topped by Anatole Friedland's very lavish revue.

This program may serve as a superior gauge for show values at the moment. "Pitch in a decided way" has popped up into public favor. It is a point of extra credit, sitting in on an asorted fair to compare stage and screen. To do an gives good cinema, something of a racehorse trying to catch up with its rival. For charity just now has the edge on the competitor. It leads by more than a neck. So one is not surprised to find that the Keith vaudeville audiences Mr. Holt and his variety. The honors belong in the stage show, which is an good that it would take a rare motion picture to beat it.

"The Woman I Stole," for an unexplained reason, swings the locale of the tale from Mexico

The Cast

The leading roles are played by Jack Holt, Fay Wray, and a supporting cast of 15. The picture is a variation of Joseph Hergesheimer's "Tampon" variation, because of the changes made. The photograph is featured on the RKO Keith screen currently; on stage is a most excellent bill of vaudeville, topped by Anatole Friedland's very lavish revue.

Plea to Nations in Newsreel

By HARRIS MORGAN
Highlights of President Roosevelt's history-making message to the rulers of 61 nations, urging disarmament and peace, are contained in the current issue of Hearst's Motion Picture Newsreel, now at Loew's State. The pictures show an impressive scene in the House, with the members listening intently to the President's plea as read by Patrick J. Harrigan, the recording clerk.

Sensational pictures show the latest developments in the great "milk war" in and about Milk, Wisconsin. Special guards are seen bringing in milk trucks loaded by show plows, which are meant for battering rams about a mob try to block their path. There are shown scenes of the seizure of an unjustified dairy man's wagon with the strikers dumping milk from the sides into the roadway. The Globe Trotter graphically describes the conflict.

Wiener Dancers at Pops Again

The Pop Concerts in Symphony Hall will open their fourth week tonight. Tomorrow and Wednesday have Wiener and his group of dancers will give two return performances at the Pops in response to public request following the great success of their "Sunny Night" May 28, which will bring the second Sunday concert of the Pops season, enhanced by the addition of refreshments and smoking. The program will be devoted to Danian music, featuring numbers by Tchaikovsky,

Many Stars at Benefit

Names scheduled to appear in the first annual benefit performance for the Catholic Artists Guild at the Colonial next Sunday night, read like the "who's who" of the theater. Lined up for appearance in Boston on that night are Will Fagness, "The Great Dictator," Fritz Scheff, Gracie Barrie, York and King, Hugh O'Connell, Hal Stelly, Jack Haley, Pat Rooney, Dorothy Stone, Marjorie Bennett, Charles King and Eddie Dowling. The gala affair is sponsored by Governor Ely, Senator Walsh, Mayor Curley, and many others prominent in Boston social circles, including Mrs. Alvan T. Fuller, Mrs. Maurice Currah, Mrs. William Cox, Mrs. Cornelius O'Flynn, Mrs. Vincent P. Roberts, Dr. Helen Dolbert, Mrs. James J. Phelan, Mrs. Lora Anderson, Judge John E. Swift, Joseph Tommaso and Mary Harrington.

Vaude-Films

The Rowdies has a high grade vaudeville bill of six acts together with two excellent film features. On stage is Billy Barker, member of the city council from East Boston, in a song festival. Another act is Joe Donahue and Company, a singing, talking and dancing team. Donahue is the brother of the late Jack Donahue, known as "The Mayor" and Company, Harry McGowan, Arthur Lafferty and Company, and Bailey and Bailey are other acts.

SCIENTIST tells Screen Stars WHY this soap is such a wonderful aid in keeping skin YOUTHFUL.

"Lux Toilet Soap actually contains precious elements skin itself has and must have to stay youthful,"

Scientist says!

Small wonder that this soap is used by 9 out of 10 screen stars —has been for years—to keep skin young looking!

FOR YEARS hundreds of Hollywood actresses have known what Lux Toilet Soap does. That's why 686 out of 694 of the important movie actresses use this beauty soap regularly: It keeps their skin so soft... smooth... young looking!

The Secret of Youthful Skin

Now scientists tell why it does these things. Contained in this soap —they explain—are certain precious elements that skin itself has—and must have to stay young!

You're born with certain precious elements in your skin. Nature, herself, puts them there—in abundance, when skin is young. But little by little as the years go by, these precious elements are depleted... a gradual loss occurs. Almost imperceptibly, day by day, skin ages, loses its fresh smoothness... becomes rough... dry... old looking!

This Soap actually contains Precious Elements found in skin itself

Don't turn, discouraged, from your mirror and say: "I suppose it can't be helped!" For science now gives you this news: You can check the loss of those precious elements!

Scientists attest the fact that Lux Toilet Soap is a gentle, completely free from harshness, quickly soluble, and containing precious elements skin itself has... is an unquestionable aid in keeping the skin young looking... soft and smooth.

No wonder so many famous screen stars have found from years of personal experience that Lux Toilet Soap is so marvelous for their skin. No wonder it is the official soap in all big film studios!

A Younger Looking, Lovelier YOU

SCIENCE tells you that pure, safe Lux Toilet Soap actually contains precious elements all skin must have to look young. These elements are found in the skin itself—an abundance in fresh, youthful skin, less in skin that is growing old, unlovely.

HOLLYWOOD has proved through

"It certainly does keep the skin young looking," says Elizabeth Love, Lakeland, Florida.

"I've been using Lux Toilet Soap for over so long. From the very first I discovered that what the Hollywood stars say about this fine soap is true. It certainly does keep the skin young looking. And not only that, but it seemed to me in no time at all my skin became much clearer and softer. I certainly wouldn't use any other soap for my skin!"

years of daily use this soap actually, keeps every type of young-looking. MILLIONS of women (and men) everywhere confirm Hollywood's experience.

Prove to yourself how exquisitely soft, smooth and young this lovely soap will keep your skin! Start using Lux Toilet Soap today.

FAMILY SEES "DADDY" MOUNT THE BENCH

FRANCIS L. SWIFT MARILYN SWIFT JUDGE SWIFT MRS. SWIFT

JOHN E. SWIFT, JR. NANCY LEE SWIFT

Mrs. Swift and the children were present in court today when John E. Swift was inducted as judge of the superior court. Judge Swift was appointed recently by Gov. Ely. The Swift home is in Milford and Judge Swift is a high state official in the Knights of Columbus.

SWIFT INDUCTED AS JUSTICE

John E. Swift of Milford was inducted into office as a justice of the Superior Court today in a ceremony in Suffolk Superior Civil Court.

The courtroom was crowded with relatives, friends and members of the bar when the commission was read by Clerk George E. Kimball. Chief Justice Walter Perley Hall, Judge Elias B. Bishop, Judge James H. Sisk and Judge Raul H. Beaudrain stood on either side of Judge Swift at the bench.

Chief Justice also welcomed Judge Swift to the bench.

The new justice then repaired to the lobby, where an informal reception was held.

Supt. of Police Michael H. Crowley, Rev. Fr. Michael J. Ahern of Weston College, Joseph H. Kirby, state deputy, K. of C. Thomas McGrath, state treasurer, K. of C. and scores of other notables in the fraternal organization mingled with the crowd of friends who wished Judge Swift well.

Mrs. Swift, the judge's wife, and four children, beamed and smiled in the midst of the large floral tributes, while newspaper cameras flashed and clicked.

Judge Swift's appointment by Gov. Ely to the bench was hailed throughout the state. Close observers claimed that Judge Swift's brilliant mind and knowledge of the law would contribute to the already high standard of work performed by the Superior Court.

What $16,000 buys in The American Weekly

A full page in color more than twice the size of any other magazine page in the world... more than 5,000,000 families at a cost of about 1/4 cent per family
... The attention of the entire family instead of a single buying factor.

A MAGAZINE editor's mail is a valuable barometer of reader interest provided it comes voluntarily, without false stimulation.

A flood of answers to a prize contest is one thing, but real outpourings of the heart aroused solely by the editorial contents of the magazine are quite another.

Without the slightest urging or solicitation
(The American Weekly conducts no prize contests) there is a steady flow of letters from readers across the editor's desk.

If the manufacturers of this country could only read this mail, The American Weekly would not be big enough to hold the advertising that would be urged upon it.

Why? do you ask?

Simply because these letters are genuine.
They are serious communications from readers who have put their hearts on paper in response to articles that have appeared in their favorite magazine.

The Readers' Serious Interest

Draw them out at random. Here we have a note from the father of a high-school girl asking for editorial articles from this magazine to aid his daughter in her Latin course. Is his interest casual?

Here is a dramatic letter from a forest ranger who, after reading the articles on psychology written for The American Weekly by Professor Laird of Colgate University, bares his misery to the editor and asks for help in overcoming an urge to suicide "because my wife and kiddies need me."

From Iowa a mother writes to ask how to bake a chocolate cake that will not aggravate her diabetes. Her health, she says, is vital to herself and her family. Is hers a surface interest in The American Weekly?

These are only three letters picked at random. There are thousands more.

Theologians, doctors, lawyers, business men, farmers, scientists, archeologists, astronomers, writers, artists, people of every profession, every race and creed are represented in this amazing correspondence.

The American Museum of Natural History asks for an article on meteorites. A university president would like to write an article for the magazine. The Los Angeles School Board requests a series of illustrations. The Associated Dental Laboratories want to reprint an article on the first false teeth. Ely Culbertson asks for an article on the history of playing cards. Editors of foreign publications write in every language under the sun for translation rights.

What of it? you may ask. The great catholicity of this mail is doubly significant. First of all it proves that this Mighty Magazine has succeeded in interesting every type and stratum of society. Secondly, it proves the confidence of the reader in the authenticity of articles in The American

Labor Aids Plan to Encourage American Artist

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

One of the side issues of the fuss being made in New York over the Rivera murals in Rockefeller Center has to do with the fashionable demand for art by foreign painters, a demand which is "gripping" as college men like to say—the American artist.

There is an organization called the "Advance American Art Commission," which is active in New York. I do not know whether there is any branch of it in Boston or not. There should be, as most of our Boston artists are Yankee and traditional to the bone, showing no traces of foreign blood, influence, or progress. I had always considered Boston to be the last stand of the American art of 1895, and I should be disappointed not to see the Boston Art Club and the Guild join in this great movement.

The commission, which is conservative in membership and enjoys the sympathy of the American Federation of Labor, that other 100 per cent organization, is trying to find means to bar "medicore foreign painters and sculptors" from competing with the native-born. Eminent foreign artists are not to be subject to the boycott. How the commission is to distinguish between the "eminent" and the "medicore" is not stated. Possibly by the prices each draws, although big prices for poor European paintings is one of the things that burn our patriots up.

Labor Chief and Art Connoisseur Lauds Plan

"While it may seem bold for an American to propose that importation of art subjects and the contracting for foreign artists be placed under proper regulation, it is not restriction, nevertheless the countries of Europe, said to be possessed of the art culture of the ages, have not hesitated to protect their artists."

So writes Matthew Wolf, eminent art connoisseur and third vice president of the A. F. of L. He is joined in sympathy by Governor Wilbur L. Cross, of Connecticut, greatest American authority on the novels of Henry Fielding, an English novelist (happily dead) considered by some to be a strong competitor of Sinclair Lewis.

One of the loudest moans of the Commission has to do with the fact that of late years too many foreign painters have got a whack at painting the portrait of the President of the United States, through social influence, diplomatic entanglement, the lure of foreign names, or some such means.

"The foreign artists have found all our gates at Washington propped open, their paintings of our presidents are not done as graceful gestures or to further international comity. If they were they would not be used for advertising the artist later on. This is as unethical as to seek the President's testimonial for some brand of beer. The public does not know that these paintings were not done on commission from the President, much less that they were not paid for. Sometimes the artist's agents find a buyer in some club. Generally, however, the portrait is used in barn-storming exhibitions, which are given following a tremendous burst of publicity and amidst glamorous teas. Then the commissions follow."

There is no doubt, according to the President of the Fine Arts Federation, that adulation of European art is increasing, while American art suffers.

Fight for Consideration for U. S. Artists

"We do not propose to dictate to any person or group of persons the course they should pursue in selecting artists for any given undertaking, nor do we intend to indicate to them that their private funds they should buy American and not foreign works of art."

"But we shall bring constant and sustained pressure to bear upon governing bodies, local, state and federal, so that American art in the future will receive due consideration; and through an educational campaign, intended to be helpful to the buyers of American art as well as to the producers of it, we want to bring about a broader realization of the fact that American artists are and of right ought to be considered equal to any in the world."

It is a noble conception and I hope they all get away with it. There is no doubt the Rivera tempo has brought to a head a dissatisfaction long simmering. The foreign exhibitions by Pittsburgh and Washington have long been thorns in the sides of American painters, with the publicity they have received. The recent announcement of an exhibition of Nazi artists does not, obviously, help matters. I hope that exhibition is well publicized or we may have a retaliatory gesture or two from those whom e. e. cummings would call the "un-friends" of Hitler.

The trouble with the whole business is that it is doubtful whether you can enact appreciation of the arts by legislation. A good deal of the recent enthusiasm for foreign painting, especially ultramodern foreign painting, is probably due to social pressure, the sense of what is "chic" and "smart," snobbery if you like.

But some of it is undeniably due to the fact that foreign painters are frequently alive in a sense our which American painters are not. An American exhibition is frequently a rather dull, dead, apathetic conventional sort of thing. It is not helped any by the fact that so many of the exhibitors are women—and paint like women.

Rummage Sale of Art Recalled

If it is "modern," much of it is obviously second-hand, imitative, learned-by-rote stuff, not genuinely experimental, and not really intellectually powerful in its attempt to find new patterns and moods. The trial of the mass-production art school lives over it all. One has a feeling that many of these bright young things who are being so violent and unconventional will presently, quite happily, be designing advertisements for scannies, shiftees, smuggies and lighties. Just as the feeling of the middle aged gentlemen and ladies who are contentedly painting the same landscape one has seen so many times before might just as well be selling real estate for all that they are contributing to creative art.

Why should one buy American art if it doesn't give you a thrill and if foreign art does? That, after all, is the function of art, to pack some kind of an aesthetic kick in the pants. No luck, no art.

If American artists, feeling aided the competition of fashionable foreigners, were to drop their attempts to imitate foreign modern or to re-produce foreign scenes conventionally and were to try to put a new sense of excitement and fresh vision and strong feeling into authentically American material with an authentically American technique, they might get somewhere.

As it is, most American exhibitions look like a rummage sale of discarded European art.

But New Notes Arouse Hottest Search for Kidnap Plotters

The family of James J. Phelan whose five-year-old grandson is under guard following receipt of an extortion demand and kidnap threat, has been secretly threatened over a period of years by the bank's post-debtor daughter Phelan. Phelan, revealed today.

"It is an old, old story," Miss Phelan said. "Long before the demand to place money in the Public Library last year, we had been receiving threats by mail over a period of years. The newspapers don't know the half of it."

She said her sister, Mrs. Henry Lyons of Brooklyn, N. Y., was not convinced over a threat to kidnap her son, Henry Phelan Lyons, and that the family was not in hiding but at home in Brooklyn. Phelan, himself the target for threats last year, had been in Boston today after visiting his threatened grandson last week.

MORE THAN $100,000

Whether the newspapers know "the half of it" or even a third of the whole story about the latest threats seems doubtful. Phelan himself said that $100,000 was the amount demanded, while Police Chief Elmer Van Buren of Brooklyn said the figure was "considerably more than $100,000."

These persons, a man and two women, are being sought in New York following failure of traps set for the letter writers.

NEW KIDNAP NOTE

One of the persons sought, Chief Van Buren said, is one who was acquainted with the parents of the threatened boy, Henry Milton Lyons, a wealthy New York insurance executive, and the former Katharine Phelan.

Receipt of a third kidnap letter was another day's development today. It reached the boy's father about eight hours after Chief Van Buren first revealed the ransom plot.

Chief Van Buren further instructions for delivery of the money the would-be kidnapers sought, police believe it was written before the sender was aware that the family had called for police aid.

Court to Settle Harvard Battle

Three Harvard students faced Cambridge court today on charges of drunkenness and disturbing the peace in a Harvard sq. restaurant yesterday.

The trio, all of whom were formal evening attire in their arrest, returned to the bars of a Cambridge police cell, are Joseph L. Johnson, 21, of Pasadena, Cal.; Horace W. Smith, 22, of South Hialeah, N. J.; and Lyman A. McCabe, 21, of White Plains, N. Y.

They engaged in an altercation with a taxi driver in the restaurant and returned to their hotel after they had been once sent away, according to Patrolman Parker J. Murphy, who arrested them.

Barbers Pass Haircut Cost Up to President

President Roosevelt, whose tastes are many and varied, will now find the price of haircuts and shaves in Massachusetts.

At least that was the text of a resolution at the fifth annual convention of the Massachusetts branch of the Association of Master Barbers, which was held in Boston yesterday.

Not only was the country's chief executive set the prices but also the wages and maximum hours of work for journeymen barbers. That resolution read:

"The Board of Registration of Barbers will co-operate with state officials of the Master and Journeymen Barbers Association to regulate and set the minimum prices, wages, and maximum hours of work in accordance with the wishes of the President of the United States."

The price choice of the delegates was 50 cents for a haircut and 20 cents for a shave. It seems sure to be up to the President.

Wage Gains Feature of New Trends

Commodity, Security and

High-Ups Cautious

By R. C. Forbes

New York, May 22.—The market for commodities, securities and stocks was characterized by a general advance in prices, but with a cautious attitude on the part of the high-ups.

Wage increases were a feature of the market, with many industries reporting gains. The market for commodities was also active, with prices generally higher than a week ago.

High-ups were cautious, however, and the market for stocks was not as active as it has been in the past. The market for bonds was also quiet.

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUCKEYER

NEW YORK, May 25.—Markets here, the phase of the financial situation which involved a revelation of securities and commodities in terms of the changed dollar has come to a close.

Realists, who express their opinions by buying and selling, are no more concerned with the prospects for improved corporate earnings. The valuation of equities in a nutshell depends on an answer to the question: Is genuine economic recovery in sight?

Net income of Electric Bond & Share Co. available for the common for the 12 months ended March 31, 1937, was $1,000,000, less minority interest, $100,000, less charges, taxes and preferred dividends as reported in its statement, $100,000, leaving $800,000, which was released today. This compares with $151,827 in the preceding 12 months. The amount of $800,000 is available for the common in the form of a dividend of $1.00 per share on the total number of shares outstanding at March 31 last.

I'VE LEARNED MY LESSON..
NO MORE "GYP"
RAZOR BLADES FOR ME

No wonder doctors say constant irritation from dull or inferior blades often leads to Lingering Skin Ailments

DO YOU realize that every time you shave with a poor razor blade, you are skinning yourself?

While you may not suspect it now, the use of inferior or dull razors often leads to skin ailments that will trouble you for years.

Doctors warn of danger

It's true, Doctors' scientific findings confirm it. And millions of shavers are being warned to act and avert this menace.

Rashes, pimples, ingrown hairs, and even boils and cysts are common results.

But it's not just the skin that's at risk. Dull blades can also cause serious eye infections.

And it's not just the skin that's at risk. Dull blades can also cause serious eye infections.

These are some of the first signs that tell you you have a skin infection.

Be safe... use sharpest blades

Now, thanks to a marvelously sharp blade, you don't have to take these big chances with skin infections. Today's BLUE BLADE is made of the finest steel... and it's honed to the sharpest cutting edge ever put on a razor. Actual tests, by photo-electric testing device, show that Gillette's BLUE BLADES are 23% to 42% sharper than ordinary blades... and many times sharper than certain "gyp" blades.

It costs so little to play safe

It costs so little to play safe. Today's BLUE BLADES are sold at the same price as ordinary blades.

BE SAFE!

Today's Blue Blade is 23% to 42% sharper than ordinary blades and many times sharper than certain "gyp" blades

At the lowest price possible for such a high quality blade.

After all, Mr. Shaver, the difference between the cost of using the best blade and a "gyp" blade is only a few pennies a month—less than the cost of a new pair of shoes.

Don't let a few pennies fool you. A month's use of a Gillette BLUE BLADE will save you a great deal of money.

SOCIAL ETIQUETTE

DANCE AND PARTIES

It is necessary for every person who goes into society to dance well in the upper classes for innocent recreation. The hall room takes young people away from silly, if not bad, influences. The brilliancy of the hall elevates rather than depresses the mind. Those who cannot give a ball in good style had better leave this form of entertainment to the rich. The floor, after removal of the carpet, must be polished. When this is impossible, a smooth cloth over the carpet. Every hall opens with a march, then a quadrille, followed by a waltz. Wine, luncheon, biscuits and bonbons should be provided. The French custom of serving soup is fast becoming popular. Dressing rooms should be provided with plenty of water, soap and clean towels. A hostess and which should not be forgotten for the men. Never attempt a dance unless you know the figures. Dance quietly. Do not kick and caper about nor sway your body, but let your motion be from the hips down. But do not pride yourself on your steps lest you be taken for a dancing master. Neither by smiles nor blushes should the lady betray knowledge of hidden meanings that lurk within a phrase of double entendre which the other sex sometimes incoherently, but often deliberately, introduces. Graces which are but invitations to flirt—or worse—should be ignored. Remember a bad reputation is as destructive to happiness as a full—or even worse—

What some writers don't know would fill a big book—and often does.

"As I understand it," reports (Continued) the kitchen cynic, "the idea of inflation is to make a money talk in a gentler voice—but to more people."

Poets ne'er will give him fame, Nor e'er will praise the Roosevelt name!
What's wrong with Roosevelt?
—To wit:
There's nothing that will rhyme with it.

The Sales Tax Now

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT has a magnificent opportunity at this juncture to round out his economic rehabilitation program with taxation reform.

Until now, he has electrified the country by assuming definite positions on economic issues, rather than sidestepping them.

In connection with financing the public works and relief expenditures, the logic of events points to the need of a General Manufacturers' Sales Tax.

Recognizing this fact, the Chief Executive has already reversed his earlier opposition to the extent of letting it be known that, if Congress enacts the sales tax, he will veto it.

In reality, this change of heart marks a striking victory for the sales tax idea.

Yet a negative withdrawal of earlier opposition may not be enough to drive through the necessary reform.

Mr. Roosevelt has accustomed the country to look to him for unequivocal, positive leadership.

Of course, the President has left the way open for greater definiteness on his part. If by next week, the House Ways and Means Committee fails to suggest an adequate tax program, Mr. Roosevelt promises to transmit to Congress his own recommendations.

IN his message to Congress on the national industrial recovery bill, Mr. Roosevelt wisely asks for new taxes which will provide "sufficient revenue to pay interest and amortization on the cost and that the revenues so provided must be ADEQUATE AND CERTAIN rather than INADEQUATE AND SPECULATIVE."

If Congress intends to follow the Presidential formula of an "adequate and certain," rather than an "adequate and speculative" tax, it must inevitably adopt a General Manufacturers' Sales Tax.

The suggested alternatives, including an additional gasoline tax, income taxes on dividends and a rise in the rates of the lower schedules of income taxes, and special excise imposts on unfavored commodities, would beyond peradventure be "adequate and speculative."

In the attempted march out of the rut of depression, there can be no compromise with the principle of substituting sound and efficient practices for unsound and inefficient practices.

The proposed alternatives to the clean-cut Manufacturers' Sales Tax, which has admirably succeeded in Canada and elsewhere, constitute a shocking hedge podge.

The substitute proposals follow no consistent, workable philosophy of taxation.

In essence they represent cowardice; they constitute a surrender to the fear to face realities.

AS the President has indicated, repeal of Prohibition and recovery of prosperity will swell public revenues and enable tax reduction.

However, it does not follow that we need return to the old, unscientific and unsatisfactory system of taxation.

Economic balance and stability will be promoted by permanent revision of our tax system.

The sales tax is needed now as an emergency measure to provide the financial sinews for financing the governmental program of economic relief.

Once the system has demonstrated its merit to the American people, it can be wisely retained as a means of reducing onerous and destructive burdens inherent in the present income tax.

The historic moment is at hand for introducing constructive, practical and scientific fiscal reform.

The President and Congress should not shrink their joint duty of introducing the General Manufacturers' Sales Tax.

The world docks its hat in admiration as the new air service conquers time and space.

The new achievement comes very appropriately at a time when the country is moving forward in confidence and optimism.

Come, Let's Be Joyful!

Why not a Joy Week in Boston! London has started one. Everyone tries to be happy, no matter what happens. They laugh, sing and even tell English jokes. At least we could do better than that.

Get rid of that sour look. Show them we were not weaned on a pickle.

THE REPORT from Paris that the United States is willing to give up the neutrality rights of its citizens, which would virtually amount to an economic boycott of an "aggressor nation," reminds us that what is left of the Constitution seems to repose the waning power in Congress rather than in a perpetuated Senate.

WHILE "T.V." is impressed with the "smile" of Herr Hitler's wet set glove, some performers actually make one wonder whether there is a mailed fist inside it.

THERE WAS a time when Congress wouldn't have seen much to cheer about over the prospect of being relieved of the necessity of declaring any member of its present temper will fight it more gratefully to the idea of having all these details attended to in the future through the simpler process of a constitutional pact.

SENOR RIVERA still insists on an economic boycott of Mr. Rockefeller's, not for the money in it, but because there is a moral issue involved.

IT IS ALL WELL enough for New York to predict that nudism will make a spectacular showing in the United States during the coming summer. But what are the bare facts?

IT MUST be accounted one of the ironies of the economic recovery that if Congress had accepted the sales tax a year ago its proceeds by this time would have been sufficient to pay off the principal of the public works loan instead of the interest thereon. Here it is more expensive, than fore-

NEW YORK, May 22—Diary of a modern Pepsy: Up, carrying Major Dickson's Pekinese puppy to Buff Cobb Brody's daughter, Pat. Then strolling by the clock and sage of the East River and through Sutton Place, a workman crying a nox on me for stepping on his newly laid cement. So to my typing.

By and by George Rector stopped in, his countenance glowing suggesting the man in the moon, and we fell to a gossamer discussion of the best foods and upon his departure sneaked out and raided the ice box. Came Henry Sell stroller, over this brochure called "No Nice Girl Sweets."

The Karl Kitchens and Robert Garlands to dinner and they away to play and my wife and Will and Jessie Hays to a news reel. Afterward to a drug store (Lombard and Avenue) and home, dressing for the bon voyage to Lady Furdess.

Such natty blades as Francis Leeder, Basil Durant and Tommy Manville sport wider shoulders than ever with pinched-in waists dropping in straight line from the hips. Roomy sleeves also taper to a tight wrist. Favorable color appears to be tobacco brown with bottle green shirts. Too, I notice several ionic dresses in ex-King Alfonso's newest combination—a suit of fog grey with collar and skirt to match and jet black tie. O. J. also a black silk display handkerchief.

That quality Thackeray described as New York's "uncommon splendor" is vanishing as the clock at the luncheon hour. Hundreds who used to ride in limousines, away with orchids, "now walk unadorned." Instead of cocktails and jazz there are beer and strains of Johann Strauss. The cozy dollar-for-every-and-odds places are deserted for beer-hole spots with a hat rack near each table.

T. S. Stripling, whose "The Store" was this year's Pulitzer prize winner, comes up from the South every summer to spend a few weeks in his flat overlooking a patch of greenery and rocky outcrop, called Morningglory Park. With all his success, he has never given up turning out seven moral tales weekly for a Sunday school paper.

Terrible Dream

HIS MOTHER died last week. He can't believe it yet. There's a terrible rebellion about his grief. It mustn't be! It can't be! Why, look at all he'd planned—

Ever since he was a boy he'd planned to do a Mother—weepy, little, widowed mother who'd won so much for him. Yes, sir; some day he'd make it all up to her some day.

When he could do things in a Big Way. . . .

Wet these things Mother wanted? Not particularly. What she really wanted—waiting there in her shabby little room, with death creeping nearer and nearer—was something that wouldn't have cost a cent.

Just a letter now and then. Her boy's voice over phone. His photograph. The touch of his hand when the pain grew too bad. A bunch of flowers.

Such simple things to want! Such easy things to give! And of course he meant to give them. But— you know how it is. He was so busy. So worried. But some day—some day when he had the time and the money to do Things Right—then he'd show her!

But now she's dead. And he can't ever show her—can't ever do the great things he'd planned. Oh, he can't, he won't believe it! It's too cruel! Why, she wanted nothing all the beautiful things he was going to do for her—some day.

"Some day." What a ghastly fill-of-the-wish it is! How it tricks and betrays us! And why! It is really because we're too hurried and worried, or too lazy and dazed, to do things NOW!

That's part of it, but not the deep part.

WE LIVE IN "SOME DAY" BECAUSE WE WON'T GROW UP.

Ever listen to a thirteen-year-old boy scout planning his future career? How blithely he skips all the intermediate steps—all the dreary drudgery and discipline—and lands plump into the midst of the shining vision of future glory!

You laugh at the Little Boy Scout?—

BUT ARE YOU SURE THAT YOU'RE NOT A LITTLE BOY SCOUT YOURSELF?

What's the sign of a Boy Scout? What's the proof of that lasting unreasons that psychologists call "infantilism?"

That trick of living in Some Day—that's the sign. Those glorious dreams of doing things in a Big Way—that refusal to do things in a little way—a dream, ungodly, lied away. There's the proof.

Why should we be taking, then, the time to do things at hand. Hate to clean up the mess they made. Must all be General. Must have every thing their own way, or they won't live in a town. Learns the hard humiliating lesson of taking, of giving, a half loaf if he can't get, or give, a whole. Dodges day dreams as he dodges any other dope. Does what he can, and calls it a day.

Which are you—

America's Policy

IN addressing the fifty-four nations represented in the Geneva Disarmament Conference, the good intentions of President Roosevelt may be conceded.

Like every formal utterance by the head of a great government, as was true also of Chancellor Hitler's speech on the following day, it was carried around the world by telegraph and radio and has been scanned from every possible angle.

Its reception may be described as mixed. In Great Britain and France it is credited with having somewhat abated the characteristic vehemence of the Hitler oratory and deflected from a tense European situation some measure of challenge and provocation which was feared from that quarter.

The German Chancellor professed to see in the Roosevelt address an implied, if not expressed, sympathy with Germany's position. He hailed it with enthusiasm and in an eloquent gift envisaged this country as the "guarantor" of European peace—a role which, it may be quietly added, we have no intention of undertaking.

Realistic France, on the other hand, politely salutes the high-sounding generalities of the Roosevelt appeal so far as official comments go. The press, however, which is a more accurate reflection of French opinion, pronounces the methods of action which President Roosevelt proposes as limited and even dangerous. It sees no change in the policy of the United States, which it accuses of imposing its views but willing to guarantee nothing.

WHILE Roosevelt's words are pronounced to be warmer and more human than Hoover's, their effect is the same. The President is reminded that "the wind that blows from the Rhine will carry away his words."

The reaction to the address in this country is precisely the one which greets every utterance expressing the profound preference of our people for peace rather than war.

To a large number of well-meaning people such addresses, despite their lack of substance, absence of definition and their wide generalizations which miss every target, still yield a pleasurable feeling. These in turn inspire extravagant praise, particularly from the professional internationalists of whom Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler is typical. He is described as "exulting" that at last the United States is taking leave of its traditional policy of avoiding involvement in European affairs and is ready to step into the breach.

The reception of the address in quarters close to the White House also appears to be mixed. The President is represented as pleased with the messages he has received, but also concerned with the "misunderstanding" that has arisen regarding the American position on the questions upon which he touched.

WE are assured in an informal statement from the White House that nothing contained in the address is to be construed as involving us with Europe. For instance, any consultative pact will go so far, but no further. While we will consult, we will not make ourselves as to what we will do as the result of consultation.

If anything was needed to demonstrate the wisdom of our steadfast avoidance of the European arena, the reception of this amiable but already grievously distorted utterance of President Roosevelt will amply supply it.

The hates and distrusts of Europe are too deeply imbedded to be dislodged by anything which we may ever say. Each nation in Europe searches such a statement as the President's to extract from it anything that will bolster policies of its own or which it can use to thwart the conflicting policies of a rival power.

The views of America do not sway the nations of Europe, but our support, if it can be captured or ejected, is a matter of the greatest interest to them. So evenly are they divided, so matched in tense rivalry they stand, that, by the preferred consent, we may have the deciding vote if we will assume the responsibility of casting it.

IS it not time that the spokesmen of the people, elected to the Senate and House to voice the people's thought, should speak for the people of the United States? Every class has been heard. Why should not the people of the United States be heard through their constitutional spokesmen?

Should it not be made plain to all the world that the American people do not wish to stick a finger in every European pie—to be a party, even a disinterested one, to every conflict or altercation that springs up in that contentious soil? The American people do not intend to be pledged to anything, however artfully disguised, which is in effect a consultative pact.

Is it not better to make this fact known than to agree to consult with our fingers crossed?

The American people have declared over and over again, and unmistakably, that they will not support Article XVI of the League of Nations Covenant, which provides for a boycott against an attacking power.

Have we not said this often enough to be understood? The American people have no intention of abandoning the historic American policy of neutrality with reference to conflicts to which they are not a party and in which their interests are not directly involved.

If this is isolation, the American people are for it almost to a man.

Why waste words, even if they are big and high-sounding words, about America's position?

THE American position is the traditional position of this country, adhered to from the hour of its birth. Our deviations from it, thank God, have been few in number and invariably corrected and redressed before it was too late.

Our duty in the present crisis is to keep the peace at home and to contribute to a world reeling under the consequences of its follies the steady influence of a great people, sternly dedicated to peace, non-aggression and THE MINDING OF ITS OWN BUSINESS.

A restored prosperity in America, which the progress we have made in recent weeks shows we can achieve with our own labors and resources, will prove a greater contribution to world recovery than anything else that it is in our power to do.

And certainly greater than anything we shall accomplish by taking part in those most futile of futilities—world conferences—or entertaining Prime Ministers, or even by addresses to the nations of the world.
